Changes in CONTAG's Management and Supervisory Board

To position CONTAG AG "more broadly" and to maintain the extraordinary level of success in the future, the owner and chief executive, Andreas Contag, wanted to see his companion of many years and supervisory board member, Christian Ranzinger, at his side on the management board. Christian Ranzinger has worked for CONTAG with brief interruptions since 1997. With nearly 20 years of PCB design experience under his belt, he is a well-respected expert in the industry. Working shoulder to shoulder with Andreas Contag, the pair will continue to push the further development of the company as they have in previous years. Christian Ranzinger is to head the technical division as CTO, while the primary focus of Andreas Contag's activities will be on commercial matters and advancing new business ideas for CONTAG AG.

Joining CONTAG AG's supervisory board will be Bernfried Fleiner. The industrial engineer has built a 20-year track record in circuit boards as a staff member at Schweizer Electronic AG. This expertise combined with his recent experience as technical director of a mechanical engineering firm is the perfect complement to the existing supervisory board, Ralf Lang (chairman) and Joachim Protz, both of whom have a business administration background. Bernfried Fleiner looks forward to working for an innovative and thriving company.

CONTAG AG has been a player in the highly contested German PCB market for over 30 years. More than 1000 active customers from all industries rely on their collaboration with the Berlin-based circuit board manufacturer. The expedited production and delivery of high-tech prototypes is the core of the company's success formula. New business concepts will be the key to building on this success in the future.
